Talmo technician presented with national award

JONATHAN Amos, Talmo, was recently honored as the Chrysler/ASE Master Collision Repair/Refinish Technician of the Year during an awards banquet in San Diego, Calif.

Rick Ciesla, senior manager, Global Technical Training, Chrysler Corporation; Joe Torchiana, ASE board of directors chairman; and Timothy Zilke, ASE president, presented the award to Amos at ASE's annual Board of Directors' Industry Awards Dinner.

Amos and his wife, Sarah, are from Talmo. He is a body shop technician at Hayes Chrysler in Gainesville. Amos has been a collision technician for 12 years. He attended Gwinnett Technical College and completed a two-year collision repair program at North Georgia Technical College. Amos is an ASE Certified Master Collision Repair and Refinish Technician and an ASE Certified Estimator.

Amos said he enjoys pleasing his customers and he believes that his ASE Certifications are proof of
